Corey Berkin represents carriers in insurance coverage and bad faith matters in litigated and non-litigated settings. He routinely advises carriers on disputes involving eight and nine-figure exposures, and he has comprehensive experience in managing first-party and third-party cases. Carriers rely on Corey for his trusted counsel, insights, and dedication to finding solutions to their most complex and intractable legal problems. Additionally, he is often requested to provide guidance on claims handling protocols and best practices compliance.

On the coverage front, Corey represents primary and excess carriers on matters involving aviation, property, automobile, general liability, and other lines of insurance. His experience includes providing coverage opinions and litigating rescission and declaratory judgment actions. On the bad faith spectrum, Corey regularly handles cases involving allegations of delay, claim undervaluation, non-acceptance of demands, failure to initiate proactive settlement discussions, inadequate communications, and wrongful denial of defense and coverage. He also counsels clients on responding to civil remedy notices, time-limited demands, and generating strategies to settle multiple-claimant disputes.

Before joining Hinshaw, Corey was a law clerk for the Honorable Beth Bloom of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. His role included drafting substantive opinions and orders and serving as a co-leader of the court's summer intern program.

Corey's background further includes practicing with a Miami-based AmLaw 100 national law firm, where he worked on a variety of criminal and civil matters. In addition to litigating insurance-related cases, Corey handled municipal law, civil rights, complex commercial disputes, and premises liability and tort actions.

During law school, Corey served as the executive editor of the Northwestern Journal of Technology & Intellectual Property.
