Geoff Coan focuses his practice on products liability litigation, concentrating on pharmaceutical and medical device litigation. As national counsel for several pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturers, Geoff's practice ranges from single-plaintiff cases to state court-coordinated proceedings, multidistrict litigation, and class actions. Current and past cases include litigating matters involving generic pharmaceutical products for pain relief, cancer treatment, hypertension, and gastric reflux, and a wide range of medical devices, including pain pumps, spinal fixation devices, hip implants, and insulin delivery systems.

Geoff joined Hinshaw in 2010. He began his legal career in 1992 in the United States Navy, Judge Advocate General's Corp., retiring from the Navy in 2022 after 30 years of combined active duty and reserve service.
