Steven Lehner's tort litigation and mediation practice is national in scope. He devotes a substantial part of his practice to employee benefits litigation, both ERISA and non-ERISA. Steve has represented employee benefit plans and fiduciaries in court litigation and alternative dispute resolution, including dispositive motions and appeals. His employee benefits litigation experience includes defense of health, life, and disability claims, annuity, suitability, and related disputes, long-term care coverage disputes, provider disputes, and breach of fiduciary duty claims.

Steve also has a strong insurance practice, defending insurance companies and self-insured clients both regionally and nationally in the areas of premises liability, insurance coverage disputes, catastrophic litigation, wrongful death claims, dram shop/liquor liability, automobile negligence, and general liability litigation. In addition, Steve represents several insurers in first-party property work involving sinkhole claims, including breach of contract and extra-contractual damages claims. Steve's clients include national and regional insurers, hospitality and retail chains, restaurant chains, private commercial security companies, and trucking companies. He leads a team of attorneys within the firm that works closely with clients in the hospitality industry.

Steve joined Hinshaw's Tampa office in 1996. He is a former member of the firm's Executive Committee and the Associate Hiring Committee. In addition to serving as the Partner in Charge of the Tampa office, Steve is the co-chair of Hinshaw's Business Litigation Practice Group.
